TANKS ARE AIDED Given Rooms in Old High School—City Sealer Office Abolished.

Awarding the 1923 contract for city garbage collection to Joseph Schindler, town of Janesville, on his bid of $6,300; abolition of the office of city sealer of weights and measures; and a decision to rent part of the old high school to the 32nd tank company, were among the most important matters disposed of by the city manager council in its third regular meeting at the city hall, Monday night.

The resignation of William J. Lenhart as city treasurer, effective May 15, was accepted and City Clerk E. J. Sartell was authorized to perform the duties of treasurer in addition to those of his own office, temporarily, on motion of Councilman William McCue. Ordinances licensing pool tables and bowling alleys and abolishing the police and fire commission were given their first two readings. The Janesville Rifle club was given permission to use the city park as a range, it was voted to have the city's police motorcycle put back in use and to call for bids for razing the old church on city property diagonally opposite to the city hall.

In accepting Joseph Schindler's bid for garbage collection from May 15, 1923, to May 15, 1924, the council overthrew the recommendation of the health board.

British in Ultimatum to Russia

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Moscow.—A lengthy note reviewing the numerous British complaints against Russian actions and demands in such strong terms that it may bring the Russo-British relations to an issue, was handed to Maxim Litvinoff, assistant commissar for foreign affairs, Tuesday afternoon by the British representative. Anticipating a break in relations, the British mission several days ago warned all British consuls in Russia to the view of the delicate situation, they should prepare to leave the country.

Moscow.—Henry Slogett, a member of the British mission, was seriously wounded Tuesday night when his official automobile was boarded by a bandit who was trying to escape from the scene of a burglary.

The man was fired on by the pursuing British bullet struck Slogett in the head. L. Patterson, another Briton, who was riding in the machine, was not harmed. The surgeon who attended Slogett said he thought the bullet had not penetrated the brain.

The relations between Great Britain and Russia are regarded as somewhat critical, but the British mission accepts the incident as a regrettable coincidence.

BODY IS FOUND IN PECATONICA

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Freeport, Ill.—An inquest was scheduled Tuesday over the body of a man found in the Pecatonica river near here, Sunday. The body apparently had been in the water at least 20 months and was that of a man 45 or 50 years old, with dark hair. The clothing consisted of an old overcoat, a coarse cheap suit and heavy working shoes. Two one dollar bills were found in the clothing, but nothing that might aid in identification.

In the absence of any reports of a missing person in this section of Illinois, it was thought the body may have floated down from some Wisconsin point.

JUDGE JAY LYON, ELKHORN, IS DEAD

Stroke Fatal to Walworth County Official; Served Since 1899.

Elkhorn.—County Judge Jay Lyon, 65, died at his home here at 6 p. m. Monday, after suffering a stroke. The end came after three years' illness.

Judge Lyon was appointed county judge in 1899, when Judge J. B. Wheeler resigned and moved to Vermont, and has served continuously to the time of his death. His present term would have expired on Jan. 1, 1927.

Born in Darton

The judge was a lifelong resident of Walworth county, being born at Darton, Nov. 5, 1857. His father traced his ancestry back to William Lyon of Roxbury, England, who came to Massachusetts in 1635. His father was postmaster at Woodstock, Ill., before moving to Darton, was a successful attorney, represented Walworth county in the legislature, was clerk of the circuit court and chairman of the county board of supervisors, and when he moved to Elkhorn was elected justice of the peace and was clerk of the school board.

Leaves Four Sons

In 1899 he became county judge and was re-elected in 1901, '05, '09, '13, '17 and '21, the last time for six years. Judge Lyon was married to Caroline M. Hayward, St. Paul, June 29, 1886, and to them four sons were born: Raymond, editor of a paper at Trenton, China, who arrived home but in a day ago to visit his parents; Dr. William R. Lyon, Elkhorn; Attorney Charles Lyon, Elkhorn; and Emory George Lyon of the United States navy, stationed at San Francisco.

The wife, the four children and a sister survive.

Judge Lyon was a member of the Baptist church, the Masons and the Knights of Pythias. His funeral arrangements will not be made until the arrival of Emory Lyon from San Francisco.

BLAINE TAX BILL WILL FACE FLOOD OF ALTERATIONS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison.—When Governor Blaine's general income tax bill reaches the senate Thursday it will face a barrage of intended amendments which, if adopted, will completely change the effect of the measure. Senators will then ask that the proposal go over until the following week before action is taken, in order that the suggested changes may be studied.

Only one amendment will be pending at the time the bill is reached on the calendar, recommended by the finance committee for indefinite postponement. This would remove the section of the governor's bill making the tax commission a one-man commission. The governor is understood to be willing to accept this change. His one-man commission plan was proposed, it is understood, in an effort to get Judge Charles D. Ross off the tax body.

MYERS THEATER CLOSES ITS DOORS

Charles Boutin Files Voluntary Petition in Bankruptcy at Madison.

The Myers theater is closed. There was no performance Monday night and none booked for the week. Papers in voluntary bankruptcy were to have been filed by Charles Boutin this Tuesday morning at Madison.

After putting on a series of food shows and attempting to make a go of the theatrical business in Janesville, Mr. Boutin has retired with bankruptcy.

A voluntary action was taken by Mr. Boutin as protector to his creditors when a writ of replevin was sought by the Bartola Organ company to remove the organ. All the accurate figures of the business are not available. It is estimated the total liabilities are $11,000 with the assets of $3,000.

Mr. Boutin opened the Myers theater Sept. 5, 1921, after spending $8,000 in redecorating, and installing new scenery, and other features as a part of the equipment prior to taking on the management.

Speaking Tuesday, Mr. Boutin declared that in the stage speech on the opening performances he had declared he would raise the caliber of attractions in Janesville and so broke before allowing them to be lowered.

"I believe I have kept my word," said Mr. Boutin Tuesday.

Snow Flurry, Icy Wind Strike City

It was 2 o'clock this afternoon before the blizzard which has been raging through the northern part of the state, reached Janesville, and then only in a mild manner compared with what wires told of temperatures and snow in the northern part of the state. The storm is universal over a wide area beginning in the lower end of Alaska and coming down through the central part of Canada.

Snow—beautiful crystals—did you see them?

Snow on May 8! That's what happened in Janesville Tuesday and Mr. Menominee predicted it, other weather men working for the U. S. government, however, says that out west they are having a great time with heavy snows.

Monday, Miss Janesville whispered that spring was here to stay, for weren't Saturday and Sunday the most be-oo-tee-ful days? But as a prophet, Miss Janesville was good as a column conductor.

The mercury must have attended the Y. M. C. A. circus last Saturday and, after studying the tumbling acts, thought he'd do some thing Monday night. At 8 a. m. Tuesday, he had dropped down to 40 degrees, 23 less than Monday.

Oh, well, pretty soon those abbreviated things may be safe enough to bring out of the dresser drawer.

A heavy blizzard with driving snow is making navigation difficult on Lake Superior, driving ice fields before it.

An inch and a half of snow fell in an around Superior during the night, with a temperature of 30 degrees.

U. S. AGENTS TAKE HAND IN INQUIRY

Full Investigation of Genoa Truck Seizure at Genoa Planned.

Elkhorn.—Further investigation of the alleged robbery of a truck from Elkhorn, held at $2,000 worth of fine liquor, seized by Sheriff Hal Wylie Sunday near Genoa Junction, where the truck on which it was loaded, stuck in the mud and was held up pending the arrival here of federal prohibition officers from Chicago.

Ernest Manchelt, group chief of the eastern Wisconsin district, and State prohibition agent Fred Bloodgood, came here Monday to assist Sheriff Wylie in the investigation.

To Foretell Inquiry?

Authorities are raising the theory that the removal of the liquor from the truck was planned to forestall any action which might be taken by federal authorities in an investigation of the division of the $200,000 liquor stock of the Grommes and Ulrich company of Chicago, Elkhorn being the son-in-law of the former head of the concern.

A full investigation of the alleged robbery will be made. Sheriff Wylie expects Mark Potter of the federal office, but some other investigator may be sent here Tuesday afternoon.

The truck seized carried both 1923 and 1922 licenses for both Illinois and Chicago. Springfield, Ill., reports the number 64-514 to have been issued this year to the W. P. Kelley Cartage company of 148-158 North Chicago city license number 1127, was twice seized by a heavy truck in the Lawlor Coal company, 551 S. Halstead St., and the other the Briggs Floral company, 301 Sheridan Rd.

BRITISH SUBJECT ALSO PERISHES AT OUTLAWS' HANDS

CAPTIVES SCATTERED INTO HILLS; SCATTERED IN GROUPS.

HELD FOR RANSOM Council of Ministers May Take Sharp Action to Force Release.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Tientsin, March 28.—A ransom of $2,000,000 for the foreigners held prisoners is demanded by the Chinese bandits, says a Central News dispatch from Shanghai Tuesday.

The British and American captives at Tientsin have been mobilized, the dispatch adds.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Shanghai.—Two foreigners including one unidentified American, have been killed in the shooting incident to the bandit raid on the Peking express train, according to a list compiled here Tuesday. One of the foreigners was Joseph Rothman, a British subject.

Two escaped Chinese passengers, arriving at Tientsin, related that the captives were marched 10 miles into the hills and there classified by the outlaw chieftain according to their probable worth. After questioning it was decided that foreigners would be held for a ransom of $50,000 each; Chinese of the first class for $30,000 each, those of the second class for $10,000 and those held to be of lower value for $2,000.

The Chinese newspaper Shun Pao, published in Shanghai, reported that Kang Tung Yu, its Sunday editor, was captured and released. The brigands are said to be splitting into groups with their captives and scattering into the hills, 20 miles from the railway.

A regiment of troops has been sent from Nanking.

Fifteen foreigners, all men, eight of them Americans, still are in the hands of the bandits, according to a list compiled here Tuesday. Two others escaped and have reached Tientsin.

Following is a list of the Americans held by the brigands:

Major Roland Finger, Roland Finger, Jr., Major Robert Allen and Robert Allen, Jr., all of the Standard Oil Company, China Motors corporation, Shanghai; J. B. Powell, Editor Weekly Review, Shanghai; Lee Solomon, Shanghai; A. A. Bentley, China and of the Commerce corporation, Shanghai. WHY I LIKE JANESVILLE

Women know Janesville. A hundred women here in a factory where conditions are of the best, make in a week what it would take a woman in a city like Janesville to make in a month. There is a world of difference between factory conditions and the crowded tenements of a smoke-filled and darkened metropolis. This is one reason for why I like Janesville.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D.C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run-down for years after my little girl was born. Then I read of this wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run-down. You may have for a testimonial for I am only too glad to be suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. Ida Hewitt, 1529 Penna. Ave. S.E., Washington, D.C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

last November. During this period, 470 season tickets and 603 single ones were sold.

In a statement made at the meeting, Mrs. Whitehead said:

"We want to thank not only those who had charge of the sale of tickets, but all those who very kindly attended the sale. It was a success, though they were not on the committees. We want to thank the Gazette for its very hearty and effective support of the club and those who took in tickets at the entertainment. For such encouragement 18 men took charge of handling the ticket sale, and it was a success in every respect."

"The public has cooperated in such a way that we feel justified in great expectations for the coming season. We have secured the kind of music here that Janesville is willing to support. Our position is fortunate, situated as we are with Chicago, Janesville, Madison and other cities in direct route and good train service."

"We can secure the great artists of the world, and with the great music of the world, we can accomplish our aim of having the Apollo club stand for music of the greatest distinction. We have the hearty cooperation of the community."

Chief of Police Charles Newman and Assistant Police Chief Lennartz have been notified by Assistant U. S. Attorney Stanley M. Ryan to be in United States district court, Chicago, Thursday, for the hearing of William Sherman, bootlegger sentenced here and now held on a federal charge of transporting and possessing liquor. Sherman's hearing was originally set for Wednesday but was postponed a day because Mr. Ryan and his chief, William H. Dougherty, have a case in the court of appeals, Chicago, Thursday. Chief Newman and Lennartz will leave for Chicago Wednesday afternoon. It was Lennartz who arrested Sherman with a trunkful of liquor in the LaSalle hotel here, and which resulted in his being fined $250 by Judge Grimm.

Thomas Dunham, Milwaukee, acceptance of these amendments would transform the governor's bill into much the same form of measure that sponsored by Speaker John L. Dahl of the assembly.

They include complete repeal of the personal property tax, payment of income tax in one installment instead of three, retention of the three-man commission, taxation of stock dividends at the same rate as income and reduction of income tax proceeds to insure the cities of larger return.

Senator Herman Blatter, Iron Ridge, introduced a substitute amendment designed to change the entire bill. Other senators have amendments that they will offer to make the bill conform to their ideas.

See Small Change

Leaders of both factions say all proposed amendments probably will be defeated. Governor Blaine in his special message to the legislature declared the structure of his bill could not be altered without emasculating the whole proposal. This is taken to indicate his opposition to any further change than removal of the one-man tax commission feature.

Unless drastically amended, few senators see any possibility of the bill getting through the upper house. The leaders of the opposition say it will be receiving unusual support if 14 members of 33 in the senate vote for its engrossment.

Effect

The governor's threatened veto of large appropriations for educational purposes, if his bill does not become a law, has failed to change any votes. Senator H. J. Severson went before the joint committee on finance Tuesday to explain his income surtax bill, which will follow the governor's bill to the floor. He asked the committee to report the measure out without recommendation.

At the Theatres

AT THE APOLLO.

Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien offer a combination that has been a success in every theatre where it has been shown. The picture is a picture to be long remembered.

The picture's central theme, that of the triangle, is closely followed. The setting is Oriental, in India and Egypt, where the voice of the mozzin from the minaret moves the plot. That has such a great connection with the drama. While the picture is long, the love affair and triangle of the beautiful English lady of nobility and the young man training for the military keeps up the suspense, which reaches its climax at the end. The picture will satisfy all. A few melodramatic scenes, rather old are used here and there, but the picture as a whole is well balanced, and produced, and all the leading parts are well taken.

After talking about the picture, which, although it seems impossible, after "Smile Through" and "The Great Place." Her songs are many, and the sets and real scenery form a background interesting in itself.

After features are added, the picture is to remain through Thursday night.

Tanks Get Armory

Capt. R. D. Harmon of the 32nd Tank company having appeared before the school board earlier in the evening to get that body's sanction to a plan to use several of the rooms of the old High school for an armory, the matter came before the council in the form of a board recommendation that such permission be granted. The board made the motion to approve the plan, and to have the president of the council appoint two councilmen to meet with the school board committee, Jesse Earls and Francis Grant, to draw up terms and arrange for certain repairs to the building, promised by the tanks. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Under terms of an ordinance to abolish the police and fire commission, given its first two readings Monday night, a council committee to be known as "the committee on public safety" would be appointed by the president, to consist of three members serving for one year each. This committee would have all the powers, authority and duties of the old police and fire commission. Mr. Jacobs sponsored the ordinance, which was drawn and read by City Attorney Roger C. Cunningham, and which was laid over to May 21 for passage.

Murken's Request Granted

Alvin Murken's request for a permit to hold a shooting contest in the city has been granted by the board of health. The contest, which is to be held on the grounds of the National Guard, and now desires to enter the outdoor small bore shooting contest, was held from Albert Nott, club executive officer. "Shooting at distances of 150, 200 and 400 feet is required and the only spot suitable is one in the northwest corner of Riverside market and all the woods and in an open field. We would shoot into a pit in the side of a hill."

After discussion in which it was brought out that the privilege might be revoked at any time the shooting became dangerous or interfered with other park activities, the request was granted.

Mr. Maxfield's bid was the same as that for which he was given the contract one year ago, when there were also lower bids. The board of health recommendation, read by Councilman Mrs. Emma H. Manning, asked that he again be given the job because of his highly satisfactory service of two years, explaining that the board did not feel like taking a chance on any other bidder.

Service Not Perfect

That the collection service has not been altogether perfect was the statement of Councilman A. J. Gibbons, declaring that an experience was everything and that a saving of $1,500 was worth looking at. Mr. Maxfield replied that everyone who has ever asked for service has gotten it.

The Schindler bid says he will have no sub-station in the city for holding the garbage any length of time and that he will move it directly into the country, disposing of it one and one-quarter mile and one-half miles from any occupied place. He will furnish his own vehicles and covers in the summer, using the city's trailers only in the winter.

"The only complaint I heard on the Schindler bid was that he lives too near the golf grounds," said Councilman C. Starr Alwood, "but as I understand it, he isn't going to haul the garbage there. He is going to dispose of it on the old Search farm, far away from anybody."

The Health Board Rejected

The health board rejected the Knudsen bid, lowest of the lot, because he lives only one-half mile out of the city on a concrete road, it was brought out.

After considerable discussion, the Schindler bid was unanimously accepted on motion of Councilman George A. Jacobs.

Snyder Loses Job

Glenn C. Snyder will be out of a part-time city job paying him $1,000 a year as city sealer, as a result of Mr. McCue's resolution to abolish the office May 15, and the duties of the office to some other employee already on the city's payroll.

"In my opinion we can make other arrangements easily to save this $1,000," said President Jensen in bringing up the matter.

"Mr. Gibbons then offered a motion that the president appoint some present city employee or official to handle the sealer work in addition to his regular duties. 'Without extra pay,' he added, and the motion was adopted unanimously."

Patrolman Asks Raise

Motorcycle Patrolman George Porter put in a petition through Mr. Jacobs for a raise in salary, explaining that he is now required to furnish his own motorcycle and keep it in repair at his own expense, receiving only the same salary as other patrolmen.

"I had my machine with side-car out this afternoon and could make only 135 miles an hour," said Porter. "It's badly in need of overhauling."

Talk among the aldermen finally

Would You Believe It?

Do you know that the Lawrence Cafe, under its new management, doubled its business at the end of the sixth week? Today it is nearly tripled.

There must be a very good reason for this astounding comeback. It is very simple, although many eating establishments adhere to these ordinary principles in operating their places.

Our business religion is unsurpassed cleanliness. We buy the best grade of meat and all food stuffs. We garnish our dishes carefully to make them very attractive and appealing. And here is a big feature to consider. Our prices are so low that no matter what the size of your wallet may be we can always send you out with that satisfied look. If you are not quite satisfied with your present eating house, drop in and let us serve you. If your wife cannot cook don't divorce her, but let us at the Lawrence and use her for a pet.

ended in a decision to put the city's Henderson motorcycle at Porter's disposal. It has not been used for more than a year. A new motorcycle was ordered for it upon Mr. Jacobs' motion.

The industrial commission's recommendation that the old church building on North Jackson street, near the city hall be razed, was read and Councilman Boyd C. Gardner offered a resolution that the clerk advertise for bids for wrecking it or moving it off the property. W. H. Bell offered to tear it down for the lumber in it, but it was decided to throw the job open to all bidders.

Subdivision Plat Approval

H. J. and Gerald E. Cunningham's plat of Second Motors subdivision near the Chevrolet was approved on recommendation of the city plan commission. It calls for 30 lots on McKee boulevard from the St. Paul tracks to George place.

W. T. Flaherty & Sons were given permission to install two gasoline filling stations at all corners on the corner of North Jackson and Wall streets. He will also have an oil draining rack inside the lot and a building for the storage of oil and gas will be planned. Miller Bros., 611 Pleasant street, were given a gasoline filling station permit.

which she said she would be unable to accept the responsibility.

"While it is a great honor to be the first woman president of the board," she said, "it is also a great responsibility, and is one of the most important positions in the city."

Jesse Earls, acting president after two years' service during which time the new high school has been completed, spoke briefly thanking the board members for efficient committee work.

Mrs. Sutherland will announce her committees some time this week.

Thanks to Have Quarters

Capt. Ralph Harmon of the Tank company, and for his company, asking prompt attention to the request of the company for use of the old high school as an armory. A statement, granting use of the building with certain conditions was drawn up, signed and sent to the city council, in session at the City hall, for approval. Mrs. Sutherland will name the board members to act as a committee with two councilmen to name conditions.

$250 from St. Olaf's

Records show that 1,250 people attended the St. Olaf's choir concert in the auditorium April 4, and that after paying the choir more than $1,000, $250 was left. The local committee responsible for bringing the concert to this city, and the money be used as the basis for a fund to purchase a piano for the auditorium. This was accepted by the board of education. The committee for bringing such a splendid musical organization to the city.

There were four bidders for grading work for the athletic field at the building. That of L. J. Valian, of Beloit at 50 cents per cubic yard, was cheaper by 10 cents than the other lowest one, although the other

Oil Is Ordered for Street Work

Oil has been ordered for 1923 street work and will be here within 10 days, Councilman A. J. Gibbons, of the purchasing committee, told the city council, Monday night. He said the street oiling equipment is "shot to pieces" but it is being repaired and will be ready for use about the time the oil arrives.

Nine more streets were added to this year's oiling program by the council, Monday night, as follows:

Ruger avenue, Forest Park to Ringold; Western avenue, Lincoln to South Jackson; Madison street, West Bluff to Ravine; Pleasant street, South High to Five Points; North High street, West Milwaukee, to railroad tracks; Wall street, North River to Marlon; South Academy street, West Milwaukee to Pleasant.

Time to Think and Act as Well.

These days when the buds break into leaves and the leaves attain almost full size in a few passing hours, the citizens of Janesville might well be thinking of some real program for the new park. It belongs to the people and it is time to commence something worth while. The park needs cleaning up; it needs a caretaker and care. It needs that protection to keep its name clean and guaranteed that those who go there will not be subjected to criticism.

Flying As a Business.

Experiments in flying have been heretofore experiments only. To the daring pioneers of the air we are greatly indebted and must continue to be as records are set and methods and machinery are adopted for safety and certainty in air navigation. The non-stop record of 26 hours across the continent by Aviators Oakley G. Kelley and John A. Macready of the U. S. Army, is a tribute to the army monoplane and to the Liberty motor which never ceased to run for the whole trip. What must have been the feelings of these men when they found the voltage regulator had gone out and were compelled to make a change and while still flying affix a new switch?

If the airplane can be handled so well it is not too much to believe that mail and passengers will soon be carried from coast to coast in a few hours more than it now takes to get from Chicago to New York by train.

Doc Cook seems to have as much trouble finding real oil in Texas as he did the north pole.

The Threat of Governor Blaine.

The threat of Governor Blaine that he would veto all measures providing appropriations when such institutions or expenses were from mill taxes, would be more effective did such an act injure some other person politically than himself. Such a threat seems unbecoming a governor and out of place in his position. The constitution of the state makes a sharp line of demarcation between the executive and legislative departments. There never was a suggestion in the constitution that the governor was to have the power to make laws. And when he comes to a point where he threatens a veto for measures which stand on their own bottom, aside from any other collateral considerations, he seems to be brushing pretty close to usurpation and inviting impeachment. It may be the governor feels that he holds a brief from the people of the state to put through the nonpartisan league program but it may also be discovered that all the intelligence is not in the executive chair.

We have had the spectacle of the governor's friends personally attacking members of the finance committee because they did not vote in accordance with the governor's wishes. Shaking the mailed fist, threats of veto of unrelated bills, coercion and lobbying for the measure will not win for the governor. The committee, in spite of the threat, immediately voted for indefinite postponement. This state will go ahead better if the governor's bill dies at this session.

Judge Gilmann may have that panama of his frost bitten yet.

THE STRUGGLE FOR NITROGEN.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—The Department of Commerce's just beginning an investigation into the whole question of the production of nitrogen in all its forms, including both the natural nitrates of Chile and the artificial ones which are now being manufactured out of the air.

In Europe, this new industry is being pushed with every available resource of private and government capital. In this country it is still a small industry, but Muscle Shoals and other great water power give us the necessary basis for an enormous development in nitrogen extraction, which is bound to come in its course.

The average citizen, reading of these things in his newspaper, is apt to think they concern him relatively little. He knows nitrogen is necessary to the making of high explosives and that we cannot have another big war without plenty of nitrogen, but he is not enthusiastic about another big war. He also knows nitrogen in some form is a necessary fertilizer, but he does not think of the nitrogen supply as a thing upon which his own life depends. He thinks of it as a problem for the farmer to solve as best he can.

As a matter of fact, this nitrogen problem hits every man where he lives. Each of us is made of nitrogen to a considerable extent. It constitutes about 20 per cent of our muscular tissue. Without nitrogen we could not live. And getting nitrogen is one of the most difficult problems in the support of large civilized nations. The abundance and cost of nitrogen is a vital factor in the cost of living all over the civilized world. The control of our future nitrogen supply is a matter of first importance to every one of us.

The Chilean producers have had a somewhat imperfect nitrogen monopoly for a few years. It is now being broken by the new industry of nitrogen manufacture. How is this to be controlled? It is the question which lies at the bottom of the present government investigation and of the bitter fight over Muscle Shoals.

This, in brief, is the part nitrogen plays in human life: Nitrogen is a main constituent of protein which is the basic substance of both plants and animals. Nitrogen exists in enormous quantities in the air. There are about 25,000,000 tons of it over every square mile of the earth's surface. Some of this nitrogen is precipitated by electrical discharges and carried to the earth by rain, snow and dew. It is then absorbed by the roots of the plants. Man gets his nitrogen by eating plants and animals. The plants known as legumes also take nitrogen directly from the air.

But when man, in order to support his great numbers, makes the soil produce such highly nitrogenous plants as the cereals, in great quantities, the nitrogen is exhausted much faster than the processes of nature can put it back. Then man must replace the nitrogen. Manure, tankage, dried blood, fish scrap and all other animal fertilizers are put on the soil to replace the nitrogen which has been taken out. But this is no more than putting back the waste after he has consumed most of the substance. Therefore man soon had to find other sources. Sulphate of ammonia, produced as a by-product of coke making, is a form of nitrogenous fertilizer, and one upon which we have relied largely for a long time. But there is not nearly enough of that to supply our need, either.

The only other important source is certain deposits of inorganic nitrates, formed no one knows how. Only two such deposits of any great extent have been discovered. One of them is in India and the other in Chile. The Indian deposits were practically exhausted some time ago. Chile, for a long time, was the indispensable source of nitrogen for the civilized world, supplying 70 per cent.

As this dependency of the world for its food supply upon Chile grew, the Chilean producers and the Chilean government formed a monopoly which grew steadily tighter. They took advantage of the situation as human nature is always will. A far more powerful combine might have been formed, except for the fact that men of several different races were engaged in the industry, and they had a hard time agreeing among themselves.

The Chilean government, for its part, levied a heavy export tax on the product and leaned back and lived on the proceeds. Chile's whole government, including an army and navy better than most in Latin America, has been supported by taxes on generations. The Chilean government has built its roads with nitrates. The Chilean aristocrats who are great landowners have lived practically tax free while the nitrates fields paid all expenses. The Chilean owners of nitrate beds, with the capital derived from them, have established in Chile a great many industries which in other Latin American countries are either lacking or owned by foreign capital. Nitrate has been the very life of Chile.

Just before the war, after much squabbling, the nitrate producers had at last formed a pretty efficient combine for the control of price and production. They seemed in a fair way to have the civilized world at their mercy. But the war dealt them a hard blow. The central empires had to have nitrates. Germany would have been beaten in three months but for the fact that she had a huge treasure of Chilean nitrate stored away. Before this was exhausted, Germany had learned how to extract nitrogen from the air on a commercial basis.

The Chilean monopolists, therefore, at the end of the war, found themselves suddenly robbed of their monopoly. Europe was rapidly becoming independent of them. They went through a terrible period of hard times in 1920-1921, during which Chilean exchange went low, the whole country was almost in panic, and the workers in the nitrate fields almost starved. With the return of prosperity in this country, the market for Chilean nitrates has improved and production is increasing. But the United States must, from now on, be Chile's chief market for nitrate.

It is this situation with which the government investigation is especially concerned. Nothing definite has been announced as to its purpose, but it is generally believed that some reasonable agreement about price and supply will be reached after all the facts have been brought to light. We will be dependent on Chilean nitrate for many years, and Chile will be increasingly dependent upon us for prosperity. This mutual dependence ought to be a good basis for agreement.

Far more important than the Chilean situation is the development of the new industry of extracting nitrogen from the air.

the thumb of the liquor rig and the alien influences which have dominated her politics for a half century. Maryland, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have no laws for the enforcement of the prohibition against liquor but they are not overlooked in the administration of the federal laws.

Somebody seems to be trying to muddy the tobacco pool.

There is a difference: had the truck with $25.00 worth of whiskey been stalled in a road near New York city, as it was at Genoa Junction, the sheriff would probably never have seen the contents again. We are less keen on disobeying the laws than those more highly cultured folks down east who have no hesitation about lifting a hot stove if it has run near it.

What happened to all those cities of which it was predicted that prohibition would make the weeds grow in the streets?

A BIT OF MAN IN THE BOY.
There's a bit of man in the boy, I say,
A bit of man in the boy.
You can catch a glimpse of the far-away
And a look at the future joy;
Whether yours or mine, you can surely see
A hint of the man that he's going to be.

Out of his laughter and out of his tears,
Out of the game he plays,
There flashes a glint of the future years,
There you can mark his ways.
The bud proclaims what the blossom will be,
And a hint of the man in the boy you see.

You may think him a boy as you come and go,
A boy who walks with you,
A glad little fellow with eyes aglow,
But a man is lurking in you.

Yes, father and son, you are really three—
You and the boy and the man he'll be.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Our Debt to Emerson Hough

Emerson Hough was nearly 65 years old when he passed this earth, but it can be said in a literary sense that he died prematurely. He had rendered a great service to his country especially in the Middle West and Far West, but there was more work that he had planned to do to complete his self-assigned task, and would have done if he had been spared.

Hough's old literary effort was the writing of history in fictional form, or the writing of fiction with a large basis content of historical fact. He was one chronicler and interpreter. In both these roles he was interesting, but in the latter he found, perhaps, his greater usefulness. For many years Hough traveled over the West, departing from the beaten paths and getting into the hidden parts. In his wanderings he not only absorbed the atmosphere of the day, but he caught out of the far distant past its spirit and articulated that spirit most interestingly.

The Middle West is rich in themes, some epic, some romantic, and all intensely human. Hough seized upon these themes and worked them out with master hand. He took the dry bones of history, put flesh on them and made them vital again.

Hough's field of literary effort was the writing of a series of books, a few of which are known to the general public. He understood what his background and setting should be when he set down to write the "Mississippi Bubble," or "The Story of the Cowboy," or "The Sagebrush" or others of his numerous tales of the American frontier. He lived both in fact and in fancy the period that lay between the supremacy of the red man and the conquests of ordered agriculture and industry.

A people's gratitude is due to Hough for what he did to portray to us the picturesque phases and formative events of the building of the West. His books assure to posterity a graphic idea of the kind of life that was lived in the West of the way in all this western country. These links binding the present with the past are worth while. There were many admirable qualities in those who bore the torch of progress westward on the great days of the West. Their contributions are not to be forgotten. A people jealous of its greatness and inspired by the deeds and sacrifices of its pioneer men and women—Minneapolis Tribune.

Who's Who Today

LIEUT. COL. FREDERICK PALMER.

The reporter will tell you that his is a thankless job. It does seem that way when a fire or murder breaks out just when he's ready to hit for home.

But the recent honor awarded Frederick Palmer, noted war correspondent for his services rendered the government during the war, proves that the same old story is not true. He has just been awarded a Distinguished Service medal. The citation accompanying the award says:

"Having served in all the theatres of the war, he has rendered his information, of far-reaching value, was placed at the disposal of our government. His broad experience with military and naval forces, his outstanding skill as an observer, his untiring energy and devotion to duty, contributed markedly to the successful operation of the American Expeditionary Forces."

Col. Palmer seems to have been mixed up in some way or other ever since he was graduated from Annapolis college in 1897. He was among those present at the Greek war in the Philippines in 1900, covered the Macedonian insurrection in 1903, was with the first Japanese army in 1904-1905, observed the Turkish revolution in 1909, and the Balkan war in 1912 and, before World War I, he had been a well-known correspondent with the British army and navy during the first two years of the world war.

He was born at Pleasantville, Pa., in 1873.

FORTY YEARS AGO

May 8, 1883.—George Benway was chosen foreman of the Water Witch engine company No. 2 at the 30th annual meeting last night. Others holding offices are Fred Hutchinson, James Palmer, Lewis Trumble and John Slight. William Kemp was the first woman.

Guards will have a May Queen party Thursday, preceded by drill and inspection.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

May 8, 1893.—John R. Ryan, prominent railroad builder, died this afternoon. In June or July a city-wide canvass will be made for a four-story building for the Union Catholic League. Plans are already being made for it, and one of the features will be a two-story high gymnasium. A petition is again out for paving River street from Milwaukee to Pleasant.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Personal Health Service

WHAT IS SCROFULA?

In the first place let us clearly understand that there is no such disease or condition as scrofula. Wrap the word scrofula in a bundle and lay it away on the shelf with the catarrh, uric acid, acute indigestion, nervous breakdown, middle age and female complaint bugaboos.

When the conception of scrofula as a disease was in vogue it was never a very definite or clearly described condition; owing to the vagueness of the idea it covered considerable diagnostic ignorance. Most of the conditions which the medical elders dubbed scrofulous were, as we know now, tuberculosis—tuberculosis of lymph nodes, of skin, of joints, bones of the ear. As late as 1913 one American baby specialist still maintained, rather feebly, that there was some special condition as scrofula apart from tuberculosis. Today nobody takes the notion of scrofula seriously.

Tuberculosis of the lymph nodes or "glands," as they are called by the laity, is a very common disease in children. The nodes on the sides of the neck are often involved, probably because tubercle bacilli readily lodge in the lymphatic system. The lymphatic drainage system when the bacilli gain entrance through diseased tonsils, decayed and infected teeth, neglected adenoids and neglected chronic nasal and ear trouble. When the tubercle bacilli are associated with the ordinary pus producing germs lymphococcal and streptococcal of various strains, suppuration is likely to occur, the abscess opening upon the skin of the neck, and a fistula or sinus remaining for a long period. The tubercle bacilli are so successful in the lymph nodes probably more often involves the lymph nodes of the abdomen, way stations on the lymphatic system, of the stomach and intestines. Tubercle bacilli of the bovine type (from tuberculosis in cattle) taken in milk from cows or herds that are not tuberculin tested, probably lodge in these abdominal lymph nodes in childhood and remain of the chest about the bronchial tubes in the nodes in a more or less inactive state for years, if not for life.

A group of lymph nodes in the back is very commonly infected with tuberculosis in childhood; here, too, in nine out of 10 cases the germs remain inactive and the disease remains latent, but may become active in later years, as the focus from which tubercle bacilli reach the bones of the spine to cause Pott's disease, or the hip joint, or some other member or organ.

And that proved of any benefit for the troubles our grandparents called "scrofula" is good for children with various kinds of tuberculosis. For lymph node tuberculosis probably the open air life with sun baths have given the best results.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—Is indigestion a sign of scrofula? Answer—It can be done, but when you come to get very well acquainted with air and drafts you discover that there is no harm in them; since ventilation is necessary for the health of the body, and air that moves and air can't be moved into the room without a draft, so the draft is necessary for the health of the body and hop into bed. As long as you have enough over you to keep you comfortable, don't fret about the draft in the room.

Q.—Oysters and molasses. Please tell me whether the eating of oysters and molasses at the same meal is dangerous. (C. E.) Answer—If the oysters and molasses are fit to eat separately, it is curious how these funny notions about oysters and molasses should persist, yet not so strange when we consider the contempt which the educational authorities of the world have for human physiology and hygiene.

Q.—Soap is antiseptic. Which would be better to make my liquid soap antiseptic, a few drops of iodine or a few drops of carbolic acid? Answer—Soap is a good antiseptic, I should advise against the addition of either.

Q.—Deformed Nose. Friend says a plaster cast will remedy it. (S. K. J.) Answer—No. Operation is necessary.

Q.—Who started the Y. M. C. A. at K. A. H.

A. It was founded in England by George Williams, a London dry goods merchant, in 1844. On the occasion of his death he left a fund of $100,000 to be used for the purpose of establishing Y. M. C. A. buildings in two places simultaneously. In 1877 the two branches united.

Q.—What is the oldest will in existence? A. M. P.

A. A will executed in 2548 B. C. is the oldest extant. It is written on a piece of papyrus and named after the man who gave his home and other property to his wife, to be left by her to any of their children; arranged for the education of his wife, and appointed a guardian for his son. In fact the will differs little from one which might be executed today.

Q.—Is it injurious to buildings to allow vines to grow on the walls? S. H. H.

A. It depends on the building. Stone and brick buildings are not injured by climbing vines. They may injure buildings made of wood, but longer in the spring, but are otherwise harmless. On wooden buildings damage may be done, since many vines which climb by means of their tendrils, way through any joint which is not perfect, and then by continued growth force the woodwork apart.

Q.—What kind of acid does sour milk form? L. M. G.

A. When milk sours lactic acid is formed. This is present in butter, milk and milk preparations such as Bulgarian milk, koumiss, etc. The lactic acid is used only in body nutrition.

Q.—Will dust-laden air, after being blown through a body of water, come out free of dust? W. W.

A. Water removes almost all soluble gases and materials in the air, but will not remove dust particles. A dry current is necessary to take out the solid particles; that is, a screen of sand and shavings or crushed stone covered with shavings or sawdust.

Q.—How is the game "Van John" played? J. C. H.

A. This is a name given in some parts of England to the game Vingt-et-un, known in this country as Twenty-one.

Q.—Does an object weigh less in the equator than the same object would at either pole? R. S. G.

A. The naval observatory says that a body weighing 121 pounds at the equator would weigh 100 pounds at the equator. The loss in weight is caused in part by centrifugal force and in part by the fact that at the equator the body is farther from the earth's center and hence the earth's attraction is slightly less.

Q.—What is the other name for enthrallment? C. W. H.

A. This is the Lancashire style of wrestling and is practiced not only in Lancashire, England, but throughout America, Australia, Turkey and other countries. It is the legitimate follower and representative of the ancient Greek sport and of the wrestling of the middle ages.

Q.—Did Queen Victoria have another name? C. W. W.

A. Her name was Alexandra Victoria, and it was under this name that she was first mentioned as queen. The next day the shortened name was decided upon and the documents issued were rewritten and signed again.

Although the public utility business differs in some respects from other lines of business, it is governed by the same basic laws. It has to pay market prices for materials and labor. When in need of new capital for increased equipment, it must pay regular interest rates for the privilege of obtaining it. If its outgo exceeds its income, it must fail, just as any other business would do in like circumstances. Careful and capable management is required in order that this Company may continue to serve you as you expect to be served.

Girl of Ghost Mountain

By J. ALLAN DUNN

Author of "A Man to His Mate," "Rimrock Trail," "The Man Trap."

Copyright by Small, Maynard and Company, and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS. Peter Sheridan, young New York lawyer, ranches in Arizona because of threatened tuberculosis. Chaco, his ranch, is near Ghost Mountain on which he and his foreman, Ted Jackson, discover a woman, though, however, to be a ghost. At Ghost Mountain, Hollister, rustler and bad man, attacks a Chinaman who is rescued by Sheridan and installed as cook at the ranch. Later Sheridan is aware that Ghost Mountain is inhabited by a young woman and a giant Swedish maid, Thora. Learning that Hollister and his gang are going to raid the place, Sheridan and Jackson plan to rescue the woman. They make their way to the cabin on the mountain and are entertained by the rustler and are fed waffles by the woman. Returning from a visit to the girl of Ghost Mountain, Sheridan and Jackson find the ranch has been raided and Quong, the Chinese cook, taken away. They follow and rescue Quong. It is apparent that the Chinaman has some secret which Hollister and his gang of rustlers wish to obtain.

They found a fallen pine for a battering ram, handling it by the broken snags of branches still firm in the trunk. Outside the door they aligned, two opposite two, while Hollister held in lantern high and swung the heavy timber back and forth, butt foremost.

Mary Burrows sat upright, her heart hammering, clutching at Thora, who rose and slid out from the covers of the four-poster to the floor as a crash resounded on the door and the sturdy house shook to the impact. Again and again it sounded, with splintering crashes while Thora groped vainly for matches and then sprang for the doorway between the bedroom and living room. The outer door splitting gave way at the hinges and fell flat while, over it, with oaths and shouts and gleaming lanterns, the five marauders rushed in. They paused for a second at the sight of Thora, filling the inner doorway, towering, white clad, her eyes ablaze, her hands curved to clutch.

"Get her out of the road," cried Hollister and two jumped at her. The rest set down their lanterns and two more leaped in to reinforce as Thora sent one spinning away, another crashing against a table and so to the floor. They erupted with her, fighting with snarls and curses as she fought with them as a she-bear protects her cub, dragging her out into the main room, a whirling teetotum of fury, panting, thumping, tripping. They caught at her braids, pulling back her head, and she whirled, swinging them clear, falling at them, struggling desperately against the odds.

Hollister leaped for the bedroom door with one man close behind him, while the three held the raging Thora. Mary slammed the door, and in their face, turned the key, dragged a bureau up and put her slimsy weight to it. There was not a weapon in the room. She had recognized Hollister's voice, and knew that they had come for her.

TODAY'S RECIPES
Lamb Loaf—You can use an inexpensive cut of lamb for this loaf. Four tablespoons gelatin, one cup cold water, two cups stock well seasoned, one onion peeled and sliced, one stalk celery chopped, two cups chopped lamb, one-third cup pimiento, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one tablespoon lemon juice. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes. Heat stock to boiling point with onion and celery. Boil three minutes and strain. Add to mixture the gelatin, when mixture begins to stiffen add meat, pimiento and parsley. Turn into a brick mold and chill. Cut in slices for serving.

Stuffed Onions—Peel six large Bermuda onions and let them soak in very cold water for an hour. Then boil for half an hour, remove from the water and when cool enough to handle remove the centers. Soak the onions aside and chop the centers with a cup of salt pork or bacon and add enough bread crumbs to make the required quantity of stuffing. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add one tablespoon of melted butter and a well beaten egg to bind it together. Stuff the onions with this mixture and bake in a baking dish with just enough hot water to keep them from burning. Bake for one hour, basting frequently. Thicken the gravy in the pan with browned flour, bring to the boiling point, pour into the onions and serve.

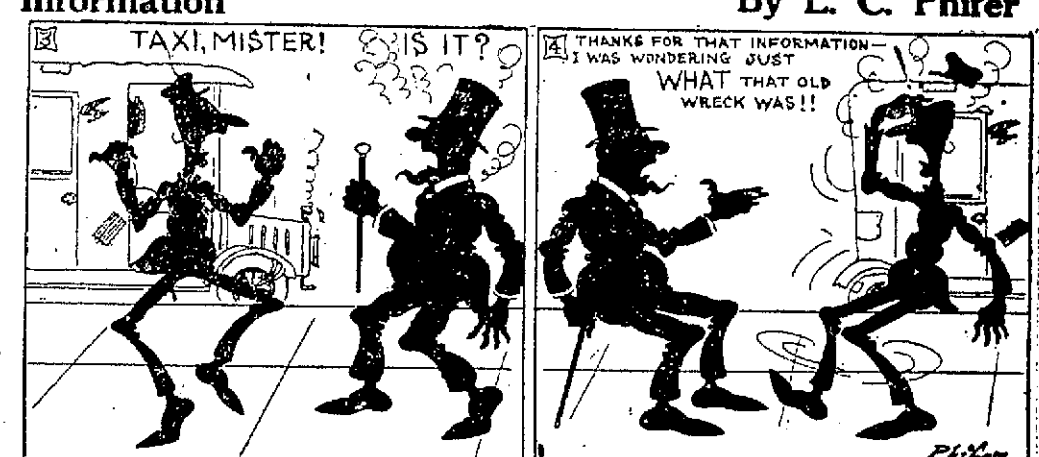

Jellied Fruit—One-half pound uncolored fruit, two cups cold water, one cup sugar, three tablespoons granulated gelatin, one-quarter cup lemon juice or juice of one orange, Cook fruit in two cups water. Remove seeds and cut in pieces. Soak gelatin in one-half cup cold water. Dissolve in hot liquid, add sugar and lemon or orange juice. Add prunes and chill. Serve with whipped cream.

SUGGESTIONS
To Wash Delicate Garments—When washing delicate items, place in a delicate wash, or garment with strings attached to them, slip them into a pillowcase to avoid getting them tangled with other pieces.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Fast summer I met a young man with whom I became very much in love, and I know he loved me, but I was not free at that time to receive his attentions as I was not then divorced from my husband, who had deserted me. I should have explained the reason to him perhaps, although he knew the situation. I sometimes think that he thought I did not care for him. Now I have left the town where he lives and I do not see him any more. Would it be all right for me to write to him and explain my actions to him? I know from a few little actions that he thought a great deal of me and I still love him more than I ever could any one else, but I do not want to do anything wrong and undesirable no matter what happens.

WOMAN.
You might write the man a letter saying that you are now legally free from your husband who had deserted

you. Also say that if he comes to the place where you are living at present you hope he will come to see you. Do not explain any more than that. Make the rest of your letter as interesting as you can about news which you think will interest him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a fellow 22 years of age and I am in my teens. I like this fellow. He says he likes me, but he has been married once and has a divorce. X-mama doesn't want me to go with him. She says he is just the same as a married man. I want to go with him. What would you advise me to do? Don't tell me not to go with him or try to forget him, because that would break my heart.

BLUE-EYED SALLY.
Tell the man that you are legally divorced you would like to see him again, but until that time you do not believe it is wise to go with him. Your mother is quite right in saying that she thought a great deal of you and I still love him more than I ever could any one else, but I do not want to do anything wrong and undesirable no matter what happens.

BLACK-EYED PATTOOTIE.
You do not love in a big way or you would avoid quarrels and petty jealousies. A great love is a love of faith instead of doubt. I would advise you to write to the young man, but when you see him speak pleasantly and tell him that you are sorry you made so much of a little thing. He will probably forgive you. There is a chance, however, that you have shown jealousy so much and have made little things big until he is tired of it and no longer wants to see you.

Beauty Chats

ANSWERED LETTERS
Grateful—With medium brown hair, grey eyes and a satiny skin the most becoming colors will be all the shades of blue, except the delicate ones, and the browns and any color that has life in it, such as cardinal or rose. In the blues the shade known as Albee blue will be the best selection. I shall be glad to send you the formula for the cleansing cream on receipt of a s. a. e.
J. H. The honey and almond lotion you refer to is a complexion, but are very useful for the hands, as they are absorbed quickly, which is often a great convenience. Dampen the little girl's hair and brush it into curls around your fingers.

Hairful—Many women have unduly anxious so they may wear very sheer dresses. Of course you understand that it will have to be done often, as the hair grows right out again.

Jane—Bobbed hair continues to be in favor, so there is no reason why you should not strengthen it by cutting and wearing it short for a time. Do not let the hair become too oily and it is not time for the shampoo, dust in a very little bit of powder and then shake it out quickly. Above all, have a chance to make the hair too dry. A great deal of this oiliness may be removed by using a towel just as if you were drying the hair.

Beauty—if you did not have these pimples you would probably be ill, as this is often-times the way in which nature must keep the system cleared. A spring tonic will be helpful, but it will be much better to consult a doctor, since these eruptions over the whole body indicate a great deal of poisonous waste in the system, which is not passing off through the organs of elimination.

Freckles—Always sterilize the needle point before you prick these whiteheads and wash and disinfect the skin before and after this treatment. A suggestion for this is, peroxide, as it is both cleansing and antiseptic.

Dorothy—It would be much better for you to use a fine vegetable oil on your skin than those creams which evidently do not agree with it. If you decide to use oil, be sure that you have the real almond oil, as there are substitutes for it made from nuts.

A. B. C.—Extract the hair with the tweezers each time it shows above the skin. A single hair that grows erratically, as this does, is apt to be only a temporary thing.

Troubled May—Either exercise or massage will make these muscles firm. Try whichever one that is most convenient.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Register and Tribune Syndicate.
Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject, and is glad to be in the field of the doctor.

The small booklet, "Care of the Baby," may be had by sending a self-addressed and stamped envelope and asking for it.

WHEN THE BABY SLEEPS
One of the supposedly marvelous tricks of the new baby to the equally new parents is that he sleeps most of the time. They remark in admiration: "Why—he sleeps all the time! Just eats and sleeps!" Never having been parents before, they can't possibly know all little animals, human and otherwise, are governed by the same habits. It is only the human animal who is taught early in life that there is so much pleasure to be had when he sleeps.

By the time he is a mere couple of months old he finds the myriad amusements that are at his disposal if he only will stay awake and cry for them. And the more he stays awake the easier it becomes for him, until, at last, nervous and irritable most of the time, he spends less and less time sleeping.

It works just the other way when he acquires the habit of sleep, and many babies, up to one year of age, and then into the second and third year, spend a large part of their time sleeping.

The newborn baby will sleep, if well and sufficiently nourished, 22 out of the 24 hours.
At three months he will sleep 20 out of a whole day.
At six months about half of his time is spent sleeping, then from one year on he will sleep 10 hours daily.
Habits of sleeping must be ingrained in the tiny baby and six weeks is none too soon to begin the training. Regular nap hours and regular hours for bedtime are the first essentials and then the baby should be put to bed when he is drowsy and fusses and cries. The best indication that he doesn't need anything is a good and steady weeping and if he is fussing the sooner he is put to bed the better. He should sleep at night. Children should never be put to bed after 7 o'clock and when they are dragged to amusement places, the parents cannot expect to teach them right sleeping habits.

his book with a tiny frog. For some time he fished, throwing the hook out, but he got no bite. Tiring of this, he stuck his pole in the bank, picked up a small pile and went to shooting at targets in the woods. Finding a stray shot, I came out of hiding and accosted him. While we talked we heard a commotion near the fishing place. On looking that way we saw that the frogman had climbed up the line and was sitting on the end of the pole singing, and brook trout were jumping out of the water trying to get him.

"By George, there's my chance!" said the fisherman, and he ran back and commenced to shoot the fish as they rose from the water. Late that afternoon when I saw him again, he had a half bushel of trout he had shot.

That broke up the meeting.

Little Louise's father being a member of congress the child naturally inherited politics with the air she breathed and grew firm in the faith that nothing good could be found outside the republican fold.

Miss MacBride, a friend of her sister, was visiting in the family, and being a democrat was a political heretic in the child's eyes.

Late one evening Louise, searching for her sister, entered into the guest room, where she found Miss MacBride by the bedside in the midst of her devotions.

Louise stared at her in open-eyed amazement, exclaiming: "Why, do you say your prayers? I thought you were a democrat."

Not a Laxative

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Try it today.
